

La Storia Di Mina

"Treasures of a Lost Art presents 144 leaves, cuttings, and illuminated manuscript fragments from the collection of Robert Lehman (1891-1969), one of the largest and most impressive private holdings of Italian manuscripts assembled after the First World War. Discussed here - with many of them handsomely illustrated in full color - are important examples of the major schools of illumination in southern Italy, Umbria, Tuscany, Emilia, Lombardy, and the Veneto. Previously unpublished, and perhaps even unknown to scholars, are works by some of the foremost Italian painters of the Middle Ages and Renaissance, including a leaf here attributed for the first time to the Sienese master Duccio di Buoninsegna and cuttings by Stefano da Verona and Cosimo Tura. Lesser-known artists, such as Neri da Rimini, Belbello da Pavia, and Girolamo da Cremona, once renowned for their beautifully illuminated volumes, are also discussed in full."--Jacket.

Firenze, 1538-1631) ..."--Title page verso.

This volume is intended to be the first in a series that will focus on the origin of script and the boundaries of non-scribal communication media in proto-literate and literate societies of the ancient Aegean. Over the last 30 years, the domain of scribes and bureaucrats has become much better known. Our goal now is to reach below the élite and scribal levels to interface with non-scribal operations conducted by people of the 'middling' sort. Who made these marks and to what purpose? Did they serve private or (semi-) official roles in Bronze Age Aegean society? The comparative study of such practices in the contemporary East (Cyprus, Anatolia, the Levant, and Egypt) can shed light on sub-élite activities in the Aegean and also provide evidence for cultural and economic exchange networks.

Military Geoscience: A Multifaceted Approach to the Study of Warfare

Della Storia Di Genova

This volume presents a selection of papers from the 13th International Conference on Military Geosciences

(ICMG), held 24-28 June 2019 in Padua, Italy. It covers a wide range of subjects within the confines of military geoscience written by scientists with a variety of different backgrounds from many countries throughout the world. Many of the papers focus on subjects related to Italy and World War I, but additional subject areas include international perspectives in the military geosciences, international security, geospatial intelligence and remote sensing, subterranean and underground warfare, analyses of historical battlefields and fortifications, and military archaeology. The book will be of interest to academics (e.g., military historians, military archaeologists, military geographers and geologists), applied geoscientists (e.g., engineering geologists and geologists working in other areas of applied geology), professional geoscientists, and those with a general interest in military geoscience and history.

«I libri di David Almond sono creature selvagge che ti scuotono nel profondo e che sfuggono ai soliti paradigmi della letteratura per ragazzi. Come tutta la grande letteratura, sono inclassificabili. THE GUARDIAN» «Un maestro, una voce emozionante e inconfondibile nella prosa moderna. NICK HORNBY» «Non c'è davvero nessun altro come Almond tra gli scrittori contemporanei, per adulti o per ragazzi che siano. THE TIMES» 'NON SONO CHE UN BAMBINO. COM'È POSSIBILE CHE IO SIA IN GUERRA?' È il 1918 e la guerra è ovunque. Il papà di John è lontano, a combattere in Francia insieme a milioni di altri papà. La sua mamma lavora nella fabbrica d'armi più grande del mondo, che non ne vuol sapere di rimanere chiusa nemmeno per un'ora, nemmeno di notte. E continua a crescere, crescere, crescere... A scuola, l'arcigno preside McTavish non fa che ripetere che tutti, adulti e bambini, sono coinvolti nella lotta per sconfiggere il malvagio nemico tedesco, e ogni volta John si pone la stessa domanda: 'Quando finirà?' Ma un giorno, nei boschi alla periferia della città, come in un sogno vede apparire Jan, un bambino tedesco che è proprio come lui: stessa età, stessa altezza e, sospetta John, stessa voglia di lasciarsi quella guerra alle spalle per incontrarsi, finalmente, e spargere insieme i semi della pace. Un racconto vivido e potente sul coraggio di sognare un mondo migliore, da uno dei più grandi scrittori per ragazzi di sempre.

«Se bastasse una bella canzone...», cantava Eros negli anni '90 augurandosi che tre minuti di parole e musica potessero cambiare il corso delle cose. Dei tanti mutamenti nella nostra società le canzoni hanno rappresentato il pilastro centrale perché, come spesso si dice, non avranno magari cambiato il mondo ma hanno certamente contribuito a renderlo un luogo migliore. Facendo lo stesso sulle nostre esistenze perché, cosa altresì non contestabile, esse sono state in un modo o nell'altro la colonna sonora delle nostre vite. E continuano a esserlo se crediamo, come diceva Fabrizio De André, che «una canzone è come una vecchia fidanzata con cui passeresti ancora volentieri buona parte della vita». Questo volume racconta, in modo accattivante e fruibile, oltre un secolo di canzone italiana, dalle origini di quella napoletana classica sino ai giorni nostri ponendo l'accento sull'importanza degli ambienti sociali che l'hanno via via ispirata, per aiutarci a comprendere che in certi casi anche l'analisi di una forma d'arte "minore" può sovrapporsi o addirittura sostituirsi a quella illustrata dai libri di storia. La canzone è arte, e dunque tramanda modi di essere e di dire non più manipolabili, in quanto espressione genuina del costume di un'epoca.

La storia di MinaSalani

There's an empty notebook lying on the table in the moonlight. It's been there for an age. I keep on saying that I'll write a journal. So I'll start right here, right now. I open the book and write the very first words: My name is Mina and I love the night. Then what shall I write? I can't just write that this happened then this happened then this happened to boring infinitum. I'll let my journal grow just like the mind does, just like a tree or a beast does, just like life does. Why should a book tell a tale in a dull straight line? And so Mina writes and writes in her notebook, and here is her journal, Mina's life in Mina's own words: her stories and dreams, experiences and thoughts, her scribblings and nonsense, poems and songs. Her vivid account of her vivid life. In this stunning book, David Almond revisits Mina before she has met Michael, before she has met Skellig. Shortlisted for the 2012 Carnegie Medal.

how the collectors' taste changed during this period and how these changes are reflected in the collections' display, and also seeks to contribute to the understanding of the original context of works of art in sixteenth and early seventeenth century private houses in a courtly city.

Depicting the Creation of Woman presented a special problem for Renaissance artists. The medieval iconography of Eve rising half-formed from Adam's side was hardly compatible with their commitment to the naturalistic representation of the human figure.

At the same time, the story of God constructing the first woman from a rib did not offer the kind of dignified, affective pictorial narrative that artists, patrons, and the public prized. Jack M.

Greenstein takes this artistic problem as the point of departure for an iconographic study of this central theme of Christian culture. His book shows how the meaning changed along with the form when Lorenzo Ghiberti, Andrea Pisano, and other Italian sculptors of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries revised the traditional composition to accommodate a naturalistically depicted Eve. At stake, Greenstein argues, is the role of the artist and the power of image-making in reshaping Renaissance culture and religious thought.

In July, 2011, the International Association for Assyriology met in Rome, Italy, for 5 days to deliver and listen to papers on the theme "Tradition and Innovation in the Ancient Near East". This volume, the proceedings of the conference, contains more than 40 of the papers read at the 57th annual Rencontre, including 3 plenary lectures/papers, many papers directly connected with the theme, as well as a workshop on parents and children. The papers covered every period of Mesopotamian history, from the third millennium through the end of the first millennium B.C.E. The attendees were warmly hosted by faculty and students from the Università di Roma “La Sapienza”.

Shedding new light on the relatively unknown art of the Wittelsbach dukes's sixteenth-century court, The Court Art of Friedrich Sustris represents the first monograph to focus on this Italian-trained Netherlandish artist. The volume incorporates original archival material, including letters and payment records into the analysis of Sustris's many projects that ranged from large fresco cycles to intimate luxury and devotional objects. Duke Wilhelm V of Bavaria transformed Munich into a vital cultural crossroads between northern Europe and Italy. As Wilhelm's court artist and artistic director, Friedrich Sustris created a unified vision that broadcast Bavarian magnificence to princely courts across Europe. Although much of Sustris's work is lost, the remaining body of his drawings provides a unique window onto the reception of drawings by early modern elites within the context of their collecting practices.

My Name is Mina

As the first book-length study of waterborne festivities in Renaissance and early modern Europe, this collection of essays draws on a rich array of sources, many previously un-researched, to explore aspects of scenography, choreography, music, fashion, painting, sculpture, architecture, stage-and personnel-management and urban planning as evinced in spectacles staged on water. Bodies of water in all their variety are explored here: seas, rivers, fountains, lakes and canals and flooded improvised locations within or adjacent to great buildings all provided stages for elaborate and costly performances, utilising the particular qualities of water to reflect light and distort sound. The volume encompasses festivals marking a wide range of occasions from the election of civic officials, the welcome of a monarch, an investiture or coronation, to ambassadorial visits or the arrival of a royal or ducal bride or bridegroom. Often taking the form of re-enactments of naval battles or legendary seaborne quests, these festivals seek to buttress civic and national pride, make claims to mastery over the sea and landscape, and explore the imaginative as well as practical life of performance space which has been a hallmark of the research and publication of this volume's honorand, J.R. (Ronnie) Mulryne.

From master storyteller David Almond comes a gripping, exquisitely written novel about a hidden-away child who emerges into a broken world. Billy Dean is a secret child. He has a beautiful young mother and a father who arrives at night carrying the scents of candles and incense and cigarettes. Birds fly to his window. Mice run out from his walls. His world is a carpet, a bed, pictures of the holy island, and a single locked door. His father fills his mind and his dreams with mysterious tales and memories and dreadful warnings. But then his father disappears, and Billy's mother brings him out into the world at last. He learns the horrifying story of what was saved and what was destroyed on the day he was born, the day the bombers came to Blinkbonny. The kind butcher, Mr. McCaufrey, and the medium, Missus

Malone, are waiting for him. He becomes The Angel Child, one who can heal the living, contact the dead, bring comfort to a troubled world. But there is one figure who is beyond healing, who comes looking for Billy himself — and is determined on a kind of reckoning.

*The wild persona of the late sixteenth century artist, who captured the dark, violent spirit of his age better than any of his contemporaries, is well documented in this biography by the author of Midnight in Sicily.*

This volume investigates the ways in which Italian women writers, filmmakers, and performers have represented female identity across genres from the immediate post-World War II period to the turn of the twenty-first century. Considering genres such as prose, poetry, drama, and film, these essays examine the vision of female agency and self-actualization arising from women artists' critique of female identity. This dual approach reveals unique interpretations of womanhood in Italy spanning more than fifty years, while also providing a deep investigation of the manipulation of canvases historically centered on the male subject. With its unique coupling of generic and thematic concerns, the volume contributes to the ever expanding female artistic legacy, and to our understanding of postwar Italian women's evolving relationship to the narration of history, gender roles, and these artists' use and revision of generic convention to communicate their vision.

Mina la stramba, Mina indisciplinata, Mina la pazza. Mina coraggiosa, meravigliosa Mina, Mina ribelle. Di certo Mina non si può etichettare. Se ne sta sul suo albero a osservare gli uccelli, il mondo e la straordinaria vita che scorre sotto le sue gambe a penzoloni. Sa che non potrà stare per sempre lassù, che prima o poi dovrà scendere, tornare a scuola, farsi qualche amico, accettare che il suo papà sia in un luogo da cui non si può fare ritorno. Ma intanto, dall'alto del suo rifugio, Mina riflette: sui misteri del Tempo, sulla vita, sul dolore della perdita, su Dio e... sugli strudelini ai fichi! Tutto finisce nel suo diario, che è proprio questo qui, che avete fra le mani. Ma attenzione, bisogna essere pronti a incontrare Mina, bisogna essere disposti a guardare dritto nel Sole, o nella Luna, pronti a sentirsi indifesi e insieme coraggiosi, e soprattutto pronti ad accettare «la bellissima bellezza del mondo», anche quando tutto intorno a noi sembra volerla oscurare.

Immobilizzato da anni nel suo letto, incapace di respirare se non grazie a una macchina, nell'autunno 2006 Piergiorgio Welby - malato di distrofia muscolare progressiva - rende pubblica con un appello diretto al presidente della Repubblica la sua richiesta di essere lasciato morire. Il dottor Mario Riccio, anestesista di Cremona, si assume la responsabilità di fare come Welby chiede: dopo averlo sedato, lo distacca dal respiratore artificiale che lo tiene in vita. Questo è il diario che Riccio ha tenuto durante i giorni della morte di Welby, nel dicembre 2006, e poi nei mesi successivi; il suo punto di vista non solo sulla vicenda strettamente "medica", ma anche sull'aspro confronto che si è sviluppato in Italia fin dall'appello di Welby; ed è il resoconto dell'iter processuale cui Riccio è stato sottoposto, fino alla sentenza di proscioglimento. Un libro contro la confusione dolosa che boicotta la discussione sui temi di fine vita. "Riccio ci dà una lezione di moralità professionale, che in primo luogo consiste nell'assumere fino in fondo le proprie responsabilità di fronte al vero protagonista della vicenda, la persona che chiede collaborazione per poter continuare a governare la propria vita in una condizione di libertà ormai preclusa dalla situazione del corpo." dalla Prefazione di Stefano Rodotà.

The beautiful and haunting novel that launched David Almond as one of the best children's writers of today. When a move to a new house coincides with his baby sister's illness, Michael's world seems suddenly lonely and uncertain. Then, one Sunday afternoon, he stumbles into the old, ramshackle garage of his new home, and finds something magical. A strange creature, part owl, part angel, a being who needs Michael's help if he is to survive. With his new friend Mina, Michael nourishes Skellig back to health, while his baby sister languishes in the hospital. But Skellig is far more than he at first appears, and as he helps Michael breathe life into his tiny sister, Michael's world changes for ever.

Skellig won the Carnegie Medal and the Whitbread Children's Book Award and is now a major Sky1 feature film, starring Tim Roth and John Simm. David Almond is also winner of the 2010 Hans Christian Andersen award. Powerful and moving - The Guardian This newly jacketed edition celebrates 15 years of this multi-award winning novel.

Italian Manuscript Painting of the Middle Ages and Renaissance

This title was first published in 2000: Michelangelo gave his painting of "Leda and the Swan" to an apprentice rather than hand it over to the emissary of the Duke of Ferrar, who had commissioned it. He was apparently disgusted by the failure of the emissary - who was probably more used to buying pigs than discussing art - to accord the picture and the artist the value they deserved. Any discussion of works of art and material culture implicitly assigns them a set of values. Whether these values be monetary, cultural or religious, they tend to constrict the ways in which such works can be discussed. The variety of potential forms of valuation becomes particularly apparent during the Italian Renaissance, when relations between the visual arts and humanistic studies were undergoing rapid changes against an equally fluid social, economic and political background. In this volume, 13 scholars explicitly examine some of the complex ways in which a variety of values might be associated with Italian Renaissance material culture. Papers range from a consideration of the basic values of the materials employed by artists, to the manifestation of cultural values in attitudes to dress and domestic devotion. By illuminating some of the ways in which values were constructed, they provide a broader context within which to evaluate Renaissance material culture.
